DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action, in response to the amendment filed 1/16/2002, is a final office action.

Response to Arguments

- 2. The objection to the specification is withdrawn due to the amendment.
- 3. Applicant's arguments filed 1/16/2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant states Gorniak et al (US 4,817,147) does not disclose implementing logical channels and specifically a physical channel having a logical command channel and a logical data channel. However, Gorniak discloses a command channel as shown in figure 1, as transmitting between elements 28 and 24 via line 22 and a data channel which is transmitted between elements 28 and 26 via line 22. This information is shown in figure 1 and described in column 3, line 51 to column 4, line 15. Applicant states on page 8, 3rd paragraph, "logical channels, on the other hand, comprise sets of data, suitably transferred on the same or different physical channels, that are sent to the same destination." Since all of the command sets of data are sent to the same destination (element 24) and the data sets of data are sent to the same destination (element 26), the channels disclosed by Gorniak are logical channels. The rejections of claims have been changed to cover the added limitations provided by the amendment and are stated below. The rejections of new claims 20-52 are also stated below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

5. Claims 23-27, 34-38 and 45-49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claims 23, 34 and 45, it is unclear what the terms "a of receive register; and a of transmit register" means. Clarification and correction are required. Claims 24-27, 35-38 and 46-49 are rejected due to dependence on claims 23, 34 and 45 respectively.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claims 1 and 4-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gorniak et al (US 4,817,147).

Regarding claims 1 and 4, Gorniak discloses an intelligent synchronous modem on figures 1 and 4. A first port is connected to a primary communication channel for the communication of synchronous data and a second port is connected to a second communication channel for the communication of command data (column 3, line 51 to column 4, line 15 and column 5, lines 11-20). It is deemed inherent the modem will contain a controller to execute the received commands in the personal computer.

Regarding claims 5-9, 14 and 15, it is deemed inherent that the personal computer will request the data received via the modem when the received information is to be processed by the personal computer.

Regarding claims 10-13, Gorniak further discloses data being sent from a remote unit to the modem is controlled by the microprocessor. In addition, a check is done to determine if the incoming information is subpar or the like (column 6, lines 43-68). The data must be saved for a period of time to allow this check to take place.

Therefore, the data is saved in the modem.

Regarding claim 16, figure 2 shows a microprocessor coupled to the communication channels.

Regarding claims 17 and 18, Gorniak further discloses data being sent from a remote unit to the modem is controlled by the microprocessor. In addition, a check is done to determine if the incoming information is subpar or the like (column 6, lines 43-68). The data must be saved for a period of time to allow this check to take place. Therefore, the data is saved in the modem.

Regarding claim 19, Gorniak discloses the channel interface is a RS232C interface. Figure 1 discloses the transmitted data from the interfaces in parallel from a serial source.

Regarding claims 20, 31 and 42, Gorniak discloses an intelligent synchronous modem on figures 1 and 4. A first port is connected to a primary communication channel for the communication of synchronous data and a second port is connected to a second communication channel for the communication of command data (column 3, line 51 to column 4, line 15 and column 5, lines 11-20). Data will be received from the personal computer or from the switched network. It is deemed inherent the modem will contain a controller to execute the received commands in the personal computer.

Regarding claims 21-27, 29, 30, 32-38, 40, 41, 43-49, 51 and 52, Gorniak discloses a personal computer receives the command and data information via line 22. In a personal computer, received data stored in buffers and registers numerous times until a time when the data is needed or requested.

Regarding claims 28, 39 and 50, in a personal computer, numerous bidirectional data lines, address lines, control lines and status lines are present which allows for fast data transfer when needed or requested.
